Pond.

W. Mildred Johnson, three and one-half years of age, and Oscar Johnson, three, no relation to the other John Johnsons, were walking the afternoon in Grace Pond, off Lawrence street.

The daughter of John Johnson, the son of No. 49 Eastar street. The boy is the son of No. 51 Eastar street, both apartments in the same building.

The afternoon after dinner the little boy, hand in hand, strolled away for a walk on the grassy bank of the pond, and on the treacherous tow. They fell in the pond, and were near at the time.

The employees at the American Tobacco Company's works heard their names, and told five boys, who hurried to the bank, and found the bodies of the two boys. Then the boys told the police and the police went dragging the pond for a body.

Commerce Delegates.

The delegates which will represent the Boston Chamber of Commerce to the National Convention of the same body, to be held at Indianapolis, February 10, 11 and 12, are: Governor Curtis Guild, John S. Hamilton, J. M. W. Hill, and George W. Draper.

Health Commissioner Ready to Report in Case of Miss Fisher.

After a week's exhaustive investigation of the numerous charges filed against em-employees of the health department by Mayor Mary A. Fisher, formerly employed as a stenographer in the office, the health commission at a public hearing on the charges against Hibbard that the charges are unfounded.

Miss Fisher, who was employed in the health department for six months as a stenographer at a salary of $100 a month, was discharged during her term of service. In this discharge enumerated many breaches of office discipline and declared that indignities had been suffered upon her by certain of the subordinates of the health commission.

When discharged she filed charges with Mayor Hibbard based upon items in her discharge, and the health commission was ordered to make over to the health commissioners for a complete investigation.

In conducting their probe the commissioners have received reports of many former employees of the department and in addition

Commissioner Ritchie said yesterday: "We have completed our investigation, but until we file our report with the Mayor we cannot make public our finding."

MARRIAGES AT CITY HALL MUST STOP, SAYS GIBLIN.

"It's the Business of Clergymen, Not City Officials," Declares Alderman.

WILL APPEAL TO BOARD.

By Dorothy Ames.

A young "Tom" fellow (that sounds like a name, but I don't know it) said right to the City Council that he would not let the City officials perform marriages at City Hall.

He said, "The Mayor of East Boston says that it's all wrong to have marriages performed in the City Hall."

I want to see him about it tomorrow. Alderman Giblin says he's no mayor, and that the whole matter is a serious, weighty proposition, but he has that attitude of the first humorist: "I don't know other people with half as much as I have."

I don't want to determine just why he made those remarks, but I think it's the laughing line on his long record for the City Hall. He's the only one of the City Council who has ever been in the City Hall.

After I had walked through a crowd of young men and women, some of whom had been at the City Hall, I found out that the City Council is not the only one who has been in the City Hall.

Bad Breath and Sour Stomach

Stopped at Once with Pure Willow Charcoal, the Greatest Gas Absorber Known.

There is no necessity to suffer the humiliation, chagrin and discomfort of bad breath, biliousness, sour stomach, flatulence, sluggish liver, etc., when a little lozenge of charcoal will absorb the stomach and liver gases and sweeten the breath.

Do not drug yourself when a simple little natural charcoal made from fragrant willow branches, sweetened with honey, will absorb the stomach and liver gases and sweeten the breath.

Charcoal will absorb one hundred times its own volume in gas. A small piece of charcoal in a bed room will keep the air of a room pure and sweet.

A little charcoal lozenge dissolved in the tongue after meals will absorb the stomach and liver gases and sweeten the breath.

Charcoal is justly called the scrubbing brush for the stomach. The old nostrils of medieval times cured bad cases of stomach trouble, not out of the system of food, but by feeding such a charcoal.

5.00 for a Misstatement

For a number of years we have paid prizes to our employees for pointing out any misrepresentations, however innocently made by any of our advertisements or signs. We now make this offer to the general public. We will give $5.00 to anyone who can show us a misstatement or misrepresentation in our advertisements—if the advertisement misrepresents the value, the quantity, the sizes, the colors, or makes an error of any kind, and so on. It is important that you state the misstatement clearly and state the facts, give an opportunity for your statement to be verified and if you are the first to do so we will pay you $5.00. In case some one has already done so, we will give you $2.50. We will not pay you if you are not the first to do so.

Always remember that the lots may be broken early.

The Automatic Price Reductions

We expect the first price will sell out the lot.
If any chance should part of a lot remain unsold at the end of two weeks

Then begin the Automatic Price Reductions:

Beginning 3d Week—1-4 Reduction
Then—should any be left—

Beginning 4th Week—1-2 Reduction
Then—should any be left

Beginning 5th Week—3-4 Reduction
All should be sold by this time. Should any be left, however,

They will be given away.

Also Tomorrow:
About 500.00 worth of garments take their first reduction of 1/4

About 200.00 worth of garments take their reduction of 75

About 100.00 worth of garments take their reduction of 35

You can tell the new lots and the reduced lots by the sale tickets which show the reductions.

Small lots of merchandise that, under the above rules, have not sold will be given away to some charitable institution, this week, and every week thereafter. It will probably happen now and then that some of the merchandise will be given away.

Reductions taking place every day. See to-day's new prices on lot not advertised.

THE MAN WITH THE FIXED IDEA

By HERBERT KAUFMAN

(Copyright, 1909, by Herbert Kaufman)

Make your chart before you start—choose your destination before you buy your ticket. Don't wait until you reach the end of your journey and then decide where you're going. Many a man has dived up in a little way-side opportunity, merely because he lacked the courage to acknowledge to himself that his judgment had landed him in the wrong spot.

You can't tell what you're best fitted to do until you've fought for a few things fit for the fighting. Rifles accidentally hit bull's-eyes now and then, but remember that every championship record is the result of lots of practice and a good, steady aim.

C. Columbus did finally stumble onto America after much aimless wandering, but don't forget that a great many of his predecessors went down in the Atlantic graves because they set sail without a definite port before them.

The builder who hasn't decided how high he will run his walls before he digs his foundations takes too much of a chance—he's apt to make his foundations entirely too weak to support the "afterwork."

Know what you are after before you start out for it. The "pig in the poke" system is dangerous—the pig is apt to catch your hand just as often as your hand is likely to grab the pig.

Don't rely on accident to start you—accident doesn't run on schedule and hasn't a habit of happening in the same spot twice. THE FIXED IDEA is the motive power that has driven most men to attainment—more plodders than geniuses have reached eminence. The sail-boat without a keel usually capsizes—the man without a keel is unsafe. Persistence and doggedness oftenest bring results. Hard work is the common coin in the realm of Success.

The musician who aspires to become a maestro, must look down to years of practice before he can look up to the hour of acclaim, and once he has received recognition he must keep practicing just as hard to hold it. The gift of music and the love of harmony are only half—it's "the fixed idea" which keeps his fingers on the keys, for hours every day, that brings him to his goal.

The lawyer and the illustrator and the scientist must all pay the same price. The master of railroads must strive just as earnestly and centralize his efforts just as intensely to-day as when he was grasping for control.

You must make sure of what you want to do—you must feel sure that you have the courage as well as the temperament to do it and then—DO IT!!

One fair idea unhesitatingly followed out is better than a dozen excellent plans none of which receive concentrated attention. Spurts don't count. The final score makes no mention of a splendid start if the finish proves that you were an "also ran."

Only the steady last. Call to mind a dozen men who have made their mark—choose them from trade or profession—and you'll find that at least ten out of the twelve were men who hung fast to a "fixed idea"—who held on despite setback and reverse—who endured self-denial and difficulties and won out because they didn't "peter out."

They believed in themselves—they thought that they could do a certain thing and counted what they believed far more than the concentrated opinion of everybody else.

The World didn't take them seriously in the beginning, but they took themselves seriously and in the end the World changed its mind.

It always does change its mind when a man makes good. But the the World's so old, and has had so much experience with the human race, that it puts every man down to a basis of zero and only acknowledges that he's above it when his gauge moves to the mark that his own confidence has set and his own ability attained.

Keep Straight.

Keep straight on to the gate
That leads the way to the things which pay.
Sooner or later you'll master fate
If your heart stays right
And your code keeps white.
Isn't it great
To grasp success and not confess you're one weak less
In self-respect—that nothing's wrecked
Which men count high? That you didn't buy with trick or lie—
Nor stoop to cheat?
Better defeat
With honor clean than to have been a thing obscene
For money's sake.
When you can take your first ideals up and scan
Them one by one—when all is done—
And find them without war or hurt,
Unmired by greed and clean of dirt,
Then you're some man.

The Great Mountain of Truth

No Man Can Travel
ALL Around It, and See All Sides. The Great Majority See
One Side Only.

The same is true of the great minds that worked for freedom in France and brought about the Revolution. They saw their little corner of the truth, and struggled toward it—the Wisdom that looks after us all attended to the rest of it.

The early Christians savagely and unjustly attacked and vilified some of the best rulers that Rome or the world ever saw. If they could have seen all of the truth, if they could have understood the noble character of such a man as Marcus Aurelius, they would not have attacked him mentally as they did. And if he, the nevolent philosopher and kind man, could have seen the great truth of Christianity, he would not have opposed and persecuted those that misunderstood him as he misunderstood them. The conflict was necessary to human progress, and to the wiping out of the old order and to the establishment of the new.

We are little microbes of thought, living on the surface of a great mountain of truth. We defile it with our false living, we live upon it and we get all of the truth that we need. What we really need now, probably, is a better digestion, more power to absorb truth—there is plenty of truth for him who will take it.

In his admirable "Letters Concerning the English Nation," Voltaire, writing of Newton, Locke, Descartes and others whose genius his own genius recognized, wrote:

"If we divide mankind into twenty parts it will be found that nineteen of these consist of persons employed in manual labor, who will never know that such a man as Mr. Locke existed. In the remaining twentieth part how few are readers! And, among the few who are so, twenty amuse themselves with romances to one who studies philosophy. The thinking part of mankind are confined to a very small number, and these will never disturb the peace and tranquillity of the world."

Fortunately, for one man that could think in Voltaire's day, there are more than twenty now; for one man that could read in his day, there are thousands now. But the "thinking part of mankind" is still small comparatively. And the great Mountain of Truth is not distressed by many efforts to climb it.

The best that we can do is to study our little corner, walk around a little way to the east, and a little way to the west, for a better view, AND MAKE THE BEST USE WE CAN OF WHAT WE HAVE.

thought is serious. He sketched roughly the picture we publish, and wrote below it:

In the dark you can't see the mountain—that's the age of ignorance. In the shadows of the city streets you can't see the mountain, if you let the city streets bury you.

The smoke of some man's mills and factories obscures the mountain for them. Some men are digging below the mountain, and don't see it.

My principal thought was, each person in his place only gets the one view of the mountain, and would not recognize it from any other viewpoint. The only one who knows the mountain is he who with open mind and honest heart has ascended it, to see it all.

Some dwell at such a distance that they only see through the dim mists of poetic allegory the mountain's faint outline.

While all sects and denominations of thought are wrangling over the truth and selling tickets to their little grand stands, the free man on the open road may see more than they all.

Some climb high up the mountain, while others actually turn their backs. The truth is as it is, unchanged by the opinion of any one who takes only his view of it. Each stubborn individual declares that his view is the most beautiful.

What we call truth probably could just as well be called JUSTICE. What is true is just and right. We little human creatures, standing each in his own spot, look up at the mountain of truth, and each of us sees a different mountain, a different side of the mountain, or some little spot within our view, and we take that to be the entire mountain and the whole of the truth.

The big man, the employer, looks at the mountain from the spot on which he stands, and to him the truth appears to be that others should work for him gladly, that he is a public benefactor and workers ingrates.

The workman looks up from another point of view, and sees a very different picture. Where he stands truth has a different aspect. HE is the deserving individual, the down-trodden, the ill-treated, and the bigger man is the criminal and the wicked one.

Men of different religious beliefs have murdered each other for centuries, each seeing truth from a different point of view, each filled with the fury of the primitive savage, and foolishly, brutally murdering in the name of distorted, one-sided truth.

No man was ever great enough to see all of the truth. No mind upon this earth could be conceived capable of seeing and understanding truth in the abstract, for ultimate truth is the great body of laws by which all of this universe of infinite time, space and matter is governed. But there are now a few, and there will be in future millions, of men—an entire race of men—capable of realizing their own limitations, and earnestly seeking the truth, as far as their limited minds can reach, admitting their shortcomings, sympathizing with divergent beliefs, co-operating with and encouraging truth-seekers of all kinds, helping those that disagree with them. IN STEAD OF MURDERING THEM, AS IN THE PAST.

There are minds inclined to sit down in despair at the foot of Truth, the great mountain. Some would give up the struggle for knowledge, saying to themselves, "What chance have I? What can I do? How hopeless is the struggle! Truth is an infinite mountain, and I a perishing, finite being. All truth seeking is in vain." But the strong mind, the better mind, thinks and talks otherwise.

SOME truth at least can be ours. Some knowledge of the world and of cosmic mysteries can be gained. Each of us with labor and patience can acquire as much as he can absorb, as much as he can digest. More would do no good.

To encourage ourselves we should remember, also, that there is actually STRENGTH AND ACHIEVEMENT IN LIMITED HUMAN VISION. We human beings are LITTLE creatures, dealing with LITTLE problems on a very LITTLE planet. Too big a view would make us unfit for the LITTLE task which is ours in this short life on this planet that will live but a few million years.

The child building a sand fort on the ocean's edge is well occupied. To him the fort is real, and the ocean not at all reality. It is good for his little brain to dream of forts and victories. If he could understand the great ocean, if he saw the truth and knew the uselessness of his baby work, he would sink discouraged on the sand and do nothing.

Not to see too much of the truth is good for children. And not to see too much of the truth is good for men. Within limitations they work. With scope unlimited and knowledge unlimited their own feebleness would appal them—they would do nothing. It is well for the world that men struggling toward the truth do more than they know, fall absolutely to foresee the results of their own activity to the community.

John Brown, and others with better brains but less energy, looked at slavery, saw that it was wrong, saw nothing else, and fought savagely against it. Brown fought his way to the gallows and died there. If he and others could have seen more of the truth, if they could have seen the consequences—millions of lives lost, billions of money spent, a great race problem—they might have worked on less ferociously, and a dreadful but desperately necessary surgical operation might have been postponed indefinitely.

HE founder of Christianity—standing patient and mild before His judge in the presence of the people—Christ, said: "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth."

Pilate replied, "What is truth?" This world-old question is embodied in Bacon's famous thirteen words, so often quoted.

"What is truth?" said Jesus Pilate, and would not wait for an answer.

To-day in the world there are thousands preaching what THEY believe to be the truth. There are millions still asking with Pilate, the puzzled, harassed Roman governor, "What is truth?"

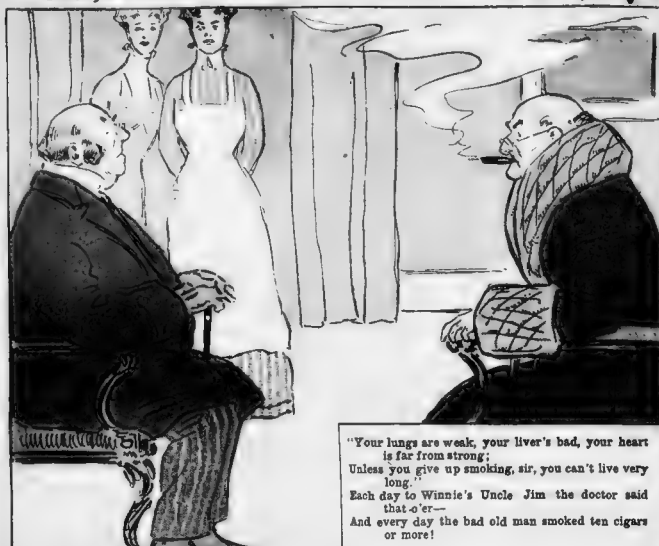

Truth is a great mountain, a mountain as great as this universe in which our world is an atom. A man beside the great mountain is like a fly on the face of a great painting. He sees only the spot where he stands; he can by no means see all the painting, or even guess what the picture means.

The cartoon on this page was suggested by R. F. Outcault, with whose work all of our readers are familiar. Mr. Outcault's business is amusing children, but his

OH, WINNIE!

Verse By Carolyn Wells

"Your lungs are weak, your liver's bad, your heart is far from strong; Unless you give up smoking, sir, you can't live very long." Each day to Winnie's Uncle Jim the doctor said that o'er— And every day the bad old man smoked ten cigars or more!

The nurse expostulated, too. "Now, Mr. Muhl," she said, "Please throw away that big cigar; it's bad for your poor head." The stubborn old man frowned at her, and just growled out, "The deuce! Why do you harp on that string, nurse? It isn't any use!"

Then Winnie came, with winsome ways. "Dear Uncle Jimmie Jim, Please listen to your favorite niece," she sweetly said to him. "Oh, Winnie, do let up on that! You make my temper rise! I'll never give up smoking!" And he glared in Winnie's eyes.

But as he glared, o'er Winnie's face a transformation came; She smiled a dozen dimples—and her eyes flashed golden flame; 'Twas like a smiling sunrise in radiant pink and white! Said Uncle Jim, "By Jove! My girl, I do believe you're right!"

"Smoking's a horrid habit, and I'm really glad to quit; I hate tobacco, anyhow, so I don't mind a bit. Now, just to show you, Winnie girl, that I mean what I say, I'll fling this window up and pitch all these cigars away!"

Then quickly Uncle Jim got well. The first day he went out He said to Winnie, "Come, my dear, we'll have a shopping bout. Pick out some trinkets that you like—get something really nice." She chose a diamond necklace, and he didn't mind the price!

Mr. Vanderbilt's $25,000 House Party

$25,000 for a simple little Christmas house party!

That is the price which Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, the chief possessor of the Vanderbilt millions, paid for entertaining a small party of his friends at "Sagamore," his log cabin camp in the Adirondacks.

It was not an extravagant party, according to the views of modern multimillionaires, but just one where everybody's comfort was looked after to the last possible detail.

The only thing that might perhaps be called extravagant was the dinner given to wind up the party, at which the favors cost about $50 each, and included such objects as fine fans, cigarette boxes, silver photograph frames and other useful and valuable articles.

The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt and seventeen guests, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Akers, Miss Eleanor Sears, Miss Dorothy Whitney, Miss Laura Norton, Miss Edith Norton, Dennis Hare, Thomas B. Clark, John I. Jacob, John Clinton Gray, C. E. Crocker and Miss Watson.

While at the camp the party was photographed. The chief ornaments of it are the Misses Edith and Laura Norton, two beautiful girls belonging to a well-known Louisville family. Mr. Vanderbilt met them while on an expedition with his horses to the Louisville horse show, and according to the society gossip he is particularly attentive to Miss Edith Norton.

Mr. Vanderbilt took care of his party from the time they left New York till they Wade, the sister of Mr. Hester, said she did not feel toward him as if he were a brother. "I feel sure she did everything for my brother. I do not think she would have done anything to hurt him," she said. "I am sure she believed in him and that he was a good man." She said she had received a letter from my brother in 1900, but it was written in such a way that she did not know on whom it was addressed. She said she thought my brother was in the army at that time, but she was not sure. She said she was always very kind to my brother, and she said she was very kind to her since his return from the Philippines.

Henry was born in Shrapnall, Maryland, in 1870, and was forty years ago and came to Washington, D. C., in 1900. He was a very good man and made considerable money. He graduated from the George Washington University Law School in 1890 and for years was a law officer on F Street.

He was a very good man and was a very good man. He was the little village of Colonial Heights, Virginia, and he was a very beautiful woman who figures prominently in the case is allowed to be a very good man, but she is watched wherever she goes.
